On Saturday, May 27th, please join us at 12:30 PM for lunch at Charlie Brown's, followed by a talk by Kyle O'Neill, our Chapter Teacher of the Year, after which we will present him with an AFA Teacher of the Year, Certificate, Portfolio, pin and complimentary Civil Air Patrol Aerospace Education Membership. Some of his STEM related curriculum follows.

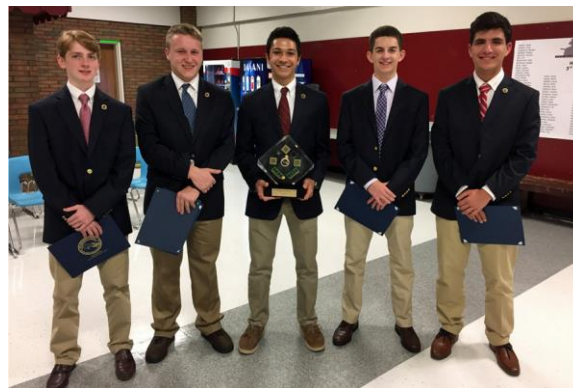

He is a teacher of Environmental and Forensic Sciences and utilizes STEM methods in teaching. His students in Environmental Science make solar ovens in class every February. These ovens are made with recyclable materials and are able to cook a variety of foods even during a brisk 38 degree day. The ovens warm up to about 110-170 degrees. According to him, the students were able to warm up pizza, melt chocolate, and bake some pizza rolls. This is a part of the renewable energy unit in Environmental Science

In the spring, groups of students receive a solar panel and have to create and design their own working model solar car. This STEM project requires the consideration of the scientific principles of solar energy and the engineering aspects of building a car to a particular weight and size.
